Lake Draining, Future Doubtful

For the second time in less than five years, Buffalo Lake, once a scenic fishing and picnicking spot, is being allowed to dry up, and the future of the lake is as murky as the polluted water.

Officials of the federal Department of Interior are to hold a press conference after Jan. 1 to announce their future plans and intentions for Buffalo Lake, Randall County's only recreational lake.

Buffalo Lake Refuge Manager Paul Ferguson said this week he is allowing water to drain from the now shallow and uninviting lake and that the lake should be completely dry by the first of the year.

Ferguson said he is currently formulating suggestions for the future of the lake and recommendations on what can be done to make the lake habitable for fish and fowl. His suggestions go to the Department of Interior regional office in Albuquerque, N.M., where they will be compiled with regional officials' recommendations.

The lake has been a source of inquiry for an ad hoc citizens committee since late summer, a committee formed to save the lake for some recreational purposes as well as for wildlife and to find ways of getting water into the drouth-plagued body.

Ferguson said the department received clearance from the Texas Water Rights Commission to release the oxygen-starved water into its former creekbed at the rate of the normal creek flow.

Only 50 acre feet remained in the lake when the decision was made to drain the lake, Ferguson said. At one time, the lake covered nearly 700 acre feet.

Ferguson said the stagnant condition of the lake water created a hazard for the ducks which annually migrate to winter over on Buffalo Lake by the thousands. The specific hazard is Dutch Duck Disease, an infection which has killed ducks in other regions.

Based on the condition of the water and the danger of spread of the disease, he said, the decision was reached to drain the lake. Another factor in the decision was the possibility that the lake bed might dry out and again become a viable bed for water.

"It's (the water) not doing any good in there," Ferguson said. "We feel it will help if it's out of there. It'll let the air and wind to it."

Ferguson said a small amount of the water being released from the lake is being caught in a small impounding pond below the dam, primarily for the use of ducks and geese which might use it.

The refuge manager said a full outline is expected to be given area residents shortly after the first of the year on the Department of Interior's recommendations on future use of the lake area.

A major factor which must be considered in the lake's future, he said, is the stability of the current dam, cited two years ago as dangerous by a Corps of Engineers study report.

He said a study team on the state level is currently examining the dam structure to determine its capability to hold water. Their report is expected to be a portion of the basis for the report to be issued after Jan. 1.

Ferguson would make only minimal speculation on the regional office's recommendations. He said they would include recommendation on future uses for the lake, possible ways to get water into the lake or steps to take to return the lake to a condition acceptable for habitation by fish.

"They might call for keeping the bed dry," Ferguson said.

"They're really concerned," he said, "and they've done a great deal of work. They wanted to go as carefully as they can

Service Stations To Close Sun.

President Nixon's weekend appeal to the nation's service stations to close on Sundays was weeks behind the times for shortage-plagued Canyon operators.

But, what his call for voluntary compliance may mean to local restaurant owners is only speculation.

Unable to get enough gasoline to meet the demands of regular customers and passing motorists, local service station owners said this week they have been closing on Sundays regularly for weeks, anyway.

Jim Martin, owner of Jim's Gulf, said he was open only one Sunday last month and will continue to keep his station closed on Sundays.

"I've been closing on Sundays because of the shortage," Martin said. "But, if I didn't have a shortage I would still close."

Nixon asked the nation's service station operators during a televised speech Sunday night to close their stations from 9 p.m. on Saturday through Sunday to conserve gasoline.

Another service station operator here said he has been maintaining Sunday working hours but said he will voluntarily close his station beginning this Sunday.

B. C. Taylor, owner of a station on U.S. 60 in north Canyon, said he will close his station on Sunday to comply with Nixon's request.

The manager of one company-owned station in Canyon said he will begin closing his station at 6 p.m. on Saturdays and the station will remain closed through Sunday.

Another company-owned station manager, who said he's pumped a consistent 3,000 gallons per day on Sundays recently, said he will begin closing this Sunday.

"Who doesn't like to have Sunday off?" he asked.

For local restaurant owners, Nixon's request and the apparent willingness of service stations to abide by the President's request poses a question yet to be answered. They wonder what effect the closing of stations across Texas will have on their tourist business on Sundays.

"I think it will probably put a damper on Sunday traffic," said Richard Tung, owner of the Yum Yum Tree Restaurant on U.S. 87.

In that case, Tung said the closing would adversely affect his business.

Another local restaurant owner had a different perspective on the Sunday unavailability.

She said while the shortage might have an adverse effect, particularly during the summer months, it might also have the reverse effect.

"It may help my Sunday business," she said. "A lot of people now go to Amarillo for Sunday dinner. They may stay here and that might make up for the loss."

Maroon Madness

Reginald Ramey, standout returning starter for the West Texas State University basketball Buffaloes, hit 23 points against the Brazil national team during the initial game for the Buffs this season. The season begins in regular play for the Buffs as they go against Central State University of Enid, Okla., at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Amarillo civic center.

Recession Seen Likely If Pessimism Reigns

An economic recession is probably coming, a West Texas State University economist predicted this week, and its severity will depend on the attitude of the American people.

Dr. Barry Duman, chairman of the department of economics at WTSU, told The News he believes "unless there's something in the future which would give us a shock the other way, I'm afraid we'll go into a recession."

Duman predicted a general economic slowdown and increased unemployment following the artificial boom created traditionally by Christmas shopping.

The economics chairman pointed to a variety of factors upon which to base his prediction.

Not the least of the factors is a general feeling of uneasiness, a general feeling of uncertainty on the part of the general public. This feeling is overshadowed yet aggravated by the uneasiness created by an uncertain fuel availability situation, he said.

"To me things look gloomy," Duman said, "although the stock market is not an accurate measure."

Noting that the stock market has taken almost unprecedented nosedives in recent weeks, Duman said while the market is not a reliable measure of economic health, it is a valuable indicator.

"It tells us there is tremendous uncertainty in the system," he said," and uncertainty is not good for business expansion. People are cautious in expenditures because they don't know what the future holds."

The energy crisis, while burying on the back pages of the nation's newspapers talk of economic problems connected with the cost of living and high prices, has intensified the already acute economic problems in the country, Duman believes.

"We have problems in unemployment, problems in the cost of living, a credibility problem and superimposed on top of that is the energy crisis," he said.

Taken alone, Duman said, the energy crisis itself could be enough to cause an economic slump in the country, particularly when all the ramifications of an energy shortage are examined.

A vast variety of industries are effected by a petroleum shortage, Duman noted, including not only the suppliers of fuel and gasoline, but the automotive industry, apparel industry and plastics industry to name a few.

"Just think," he said, "of the sector of the economy which depends on tourists. There are thousands and thousands of industries affected."

Duman suggested a potential and partial solution to the energy problem, a solution which would not resort to rationing of gasoline, and a solution he termed "not the fairest."

That solution would be to allow gasoline prices to seek their own level in the competitive market. Government ceilings on gasoline prices should be lifted and the price should be allowed to seek its own level.

"If you let the price of fuel go up it will tend to limit the use," he said. "It is unfortunate that poor people would be adversely affected by this. But, on the other hand, rationing is a hopelessly complicated problem."

A key to the economic future of the country, Duman believes, is the attitude of the people, even with the fuel problem and the general economic instability.

Her Steady Eye Focuses On Death And The Dying

By ANN MELIN

"You walk into the hospital room of a 36-year-old mother of five who is dying. What is your natural, honest gut reaction?" Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross asked an audience of about 650 people, many of them West Texas State University nursing students.

Silence fell over the WT Activities Center ballroom.

One girl spoke up. "Sad," she murmured.

"Helpless," said another.

"Angry," said one student.

"Not on MY shift," proclaimed an optimistic nursing student with humorous candor that provided the audience with welcome comic relief.

Death and the sun have been said to be the two things man can't look at with a steady eye, yet the former was brought into sharp focus in two penetrating lectures by Dr. Kubler-Ross in her appearance here Tuesday under auspices of the WTSU United Campus Ministry.

A native of the village of Meilen on Lake Zurich, Switzerland, Dr. Kubler-Ross has devoted the past eight years to ministering to terminally-ill patients and their families at no charge.

A recognized pioneer in the study and treatment of dying patients, Dr. Kubler-Ross illustrated her points with poignant human stories of children, mothers and elderly people coming to grips with the harsh fact of their impending deaths.

Experience has taught the physician that patients welcome talking about dying and that 94 per cent of terminally-ill patients prefer to know they are dying as soon as the diagnosis is made.

Standing in the way of what Dr. Kubler-Ross terms as "a good death" are the "negative gut reactions" that people have toward an experience as natural and universal as human birth, which is greeted with jubilation, she said.

But there are more tangible barriers that predicate against a "good death," which Dr. Kubler-Ross defines as "a death with dignity" outside the depersonalized, sterile atmosphere of the intensive care unit.

In an interview Dr. Kubler-Ross stated that the astronomical cost of hospital expenses in America is a problem that should not have to be borne by terminally-ill patients facing the

Cattle Grazing Slow Business

Cattle grazing on winter wheat in Randall County are few and far between this year.

A fall dearth of moisture has stunted the growth of much of the county's dryland wheat crop and uncertainty about future weather may convince local stockers that cattle this winter may not be profitable.

County Agent John Brazzil said as many as 60,000 head of cattle grazed winter wheat last year, a year which saw moisture in abundance for wheat-growers.

Now, only a few head of cattle have been brought into the county for grazing and those are grazing irrigated croplands. Some cattle are also grazing on grain sorghum stubble with their owners hoping that the wheat will become well rooted and available for feeding.

"This year the number has been drastically reduced," Brazzil said. "Nobody knows what the total number is, but the big part of dryland acreage is not grazeable."

Brazzil said only about 80,000 acres of farmland in the county are irrigated out of a potential acreage of 300,000.

"Generally we would have had — like in the past two years — a big part of the cattle already brought in by this time," Brazzil said. "We're not out of the stocker business, but it is at a significantly lower level."

Brazzil said buying will probably continue through the winter, but as the winter becomes harsher the demand will lessen. He predicted that few cattle will come in during December and January as growth of the unrooted wheat slows almost to a standstill.

After the first of the year, the prospect for bringing cattle in will also be minimized due to the shortness of the season and another factor which heretofore has not been a

President Nixon is gaining support from the people. Here in Canyon the Canyon News poll is running neck and neck on whether the President should quit or stick it out.

There is growing sentiment for Nixon as harrassment by electronic media continues. In the past 25 years the liberal press has approved of only one President. That was John F. Kennedy who probably would not have kept that approval long if he had lived.

Last week Nixon was greeted by 20,000 cheering well wishers in Georgia . . . scant incentive for the President to resign.

Remember, it was conservative editors who raised a hue and cry for Harry Truman's impeachment after he fired General MacArthur. Dirty stories were told about the first family.

Lewd jokes were whispered about Margaret, the President's only daughter.

When a band of Puerto Ricans aborted an attempt on Truman's life, I heard one well-known Panhandle editor remark: "We should buy them some more ammunition and give them target practice."

Electronic media was largely responsible for what amounted to abdication by Lyndon Johnson.

Presidents are not infallible. I think Harry Truman was wrong in his dealings with MacArthur. I think Lyndon Johnson was wrong in committing us so deeply without tangible prospect of victory in Vietnam.

I think what happened at Watergate was wrong but I think overt harrassment of a President is equally wrong.

Editorial comment and straight reportage is one thing, slanted stories and insulting, useless questions propounded to the President before television cameras is another.

Let the members of my profession remember, we are not elected. It is our job to report, not to rule.

If the media does not begin to exercise more responsibility we may eventually see the public siding against us in our efforts to keep the channels of information open. This could lead to curtains over liberty in these United States — man's noblest experiment.

I've caught a lot of flak over Carroll Wilson's comments in The Sunday News. I have this to say. I disagree with Carroll in many points concerning the Watergate investigation.

I likewise disagree with Ann Brown in many points in her very conservative "Our World" which appears side by side with Wilson's column.

Their columns are presented as expressions of their opinions. I have the utmost respect for the integrity of both and I will not muzzle either of them.

I talked to a retired member of the CIA this week. He is angry that CIA has been connected with Watergate.

"If we had done it, it wouldn't have been botched," he remarked bitterly.

I still get sick to my stomach when I hear platitudes from Ted Kennedy. I have a slogan to suggest for Republicans next year:

AT LEAST NO ONE WAS DROWNED IN WATERGATE.

News poll tests feeling on Nixon

The News is continuing in this issue a new feature to give Canyon residents an opportunity to respond to issues of the day.

A poll to ascertain what local residents think about the Watergate scandal and the state of the Presidency appears on this page of this issue.

News Editor Carroll Wilson said the poll is just the first of several polls scheduled to appear in the News over the next few months on topics of major concern, both locally and nationally.

"We are beginning our poll series with the Watergate business because it is the topic of major concern currently," Wilson said. "However, we believe polls in future issues could be related to other topics, even local topics and perhaps even straw polls on political candidates."

Wilson said the polls will run in The News only so long as readers respond with their answers to the poll questions.

"We can't afford to use the space if the poll doesn't serve a definite and useful purpose of letting people know how Canyon residents feel on specific issues," he said.

Wilson said he feels the polls could become a vital part of the newspaper making it truly a reflection of public opinion.

The Watergate poll which appears in today's issue appeared Sunday and has been rerun basically to allow two spouses in a family to express their opinions.

The finished poll should be returned to the News office not later than noon Dec. 7. They can be mailed or brought to the office on the square in Canyon.

Some of the questions on today's poll are:

"President Nixon has, in no way, sought to cover up information concerning Watergate. Agree or disagree."

"President Nixon can effectively govern this country during the remaining three years of his term. Agree or disagree."

"President Nixon should not resign his office. Agree or disagree."

"The House of Representatives should bring impeachment charges against the President. Agree or disagree."

"Television has been objective in its presentation of news relative to Watergate. Agree or disagree."

Wilson said the polls will be tallied and the results will appear in the Dec. 9 issue of The Canyon News.

Senior Citizen Club Seeking Members

A new group for senior citizens formed in Amarillo is open to membership from Canyon, a spokesman said this week.

The Amarillo Senior Citizens Association, with headquarters in the old Amarillo High School building in downtown Amarillo, is open to accept members from the local area. Persons 55 years of age and older are eligible for membership with membership fee of $2 per year.

Applications for membership are available at the ASCA headquarters. The facilities include arts and crafts, games and other hobbies.

A benefit dance for the ASCA will be hosted at 8 p.m. Friday by the newly-organized 45 Uppers Club at the old AHS cafeteria building. Proceeds will go to the ASCA center. Tickets are $1 per person.

Altar Society And Christian Mothers Meet Tues

By REBA RAEF

ST. MARY'S ALTAR Society and Christian Mothers will have their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, Dec. 4, at 7:30, in the Catechical building. The meeting will be followed by a Christmas party. All associate members are especially invited to attend. All members are asked to bring a gift for a baby layette, which will be presented to Catholic Charities in Amarillo. Bingo will provide the entertainment for the party.

CATHOLIC CHARITIES ARE asking for help with food for Christmas again this year. Anyone who would like to put together a box of food for a needy family, is asked to bring the box by our store or to the Bernard Hartman residence by Dec. 19. This is one way that we can give of ourselves this Christmas. All donations will be greatly appreciated.

ALL C.Y.O. MEMBERS are reminded to start gathering toys to be given to Catholic Charities to be distributed to needy children at Christmas. Your generosity can make Christmas a happy occasion for some child.

ALL UMBARGER 4-H Club members and adult helpers are asked to meet in Columbus Club Hall, Sunday, Dec. 2, at 2:00 p.m. to finish their Christmas projects.

MR. AND MRS. A. R. Friemel and family went to Denver, Colo., to attend the double wedding of their daughter, Yvonne and Patrick Whalen and Bernice Jron and Joe Whalen, Jr. The vows were exchanged in St. Mark's Episcopal Chapel in Denver, Nov. 24 at 3:00 p.m. Parents of the grooms are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whalen Sr. Also attending the wedding were Gyn and Jim Urisote and Nicole, from Amarillo; the H. P. Artho's from Wildorado; the Elmer Reinarts, from Hereford; the Sigfreid Bolte's and Carl Hartman's, from Umbarger.

UMBARGER HOMES HAD many visitors over the Thanksgiving holidays. Guests in the Eddie Wieck home on Thanksgiving day were Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Wieck and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wieck and family, from Hartley.

VISITORS IN THE Bernard Hartman home for Thanksgiving dinner were Elmer and Alta May Hartman and family, from Happy and Lewie Raef, Jr. from Pampa.

THE TONY HANDINGS had as their guests Ross and Genieve Keesee and Amy, from Dallas; Anthony and Nancy Handing and Joanna, from Dalhart; Robert and Jimmy Handing, from Dalhart; Al and Bertha Britten and Louis, from Conway; John and Linda Britten, Michelle and Melissa, from Claude; Donna Detten, from St. Frances; Fred Britten, from Conway and Ollie and Ross Keesee, from Amarillo. The only one of the Handing children unable to be home was Mary Kolac and husband Rodney and Dametria, from Denver.

GUESTS OF THE Bill Gerbers on Thanksgiving day were Tom and Joyce Gerber and family, from Dalhart; Jerome and Romilda Friemel and family from Hereford; Billy and Suzanne Gerber and family from Dumas; Glen and Vicki Gerber and family, Don and Carol Sue Gerber and family and Linda Gerber, from Amarillo; Sharon Gerber, from Austin and Jim and Carolyn Wieck and family, from Hartley. A nephew of Mrs. Gerber, Jerry Wayne Conners and his family stopped by for a short visit, on their way to Hereford.

VISITORS IN THE Leonard Batenhorst home over the holidays were Tom and Kathy Callarman and Geoffrey, from Tempe, Ariz., Greg and Diana Stork and family, from Gruver; and Donnie and Jerry Batenhorst, from Amarillo.

BILL AND LUCILLE Hicks had as their dinner guests on Thanksgiving day the Leon Sparks family, from Bushland; the Roy Greer family, from Wildorado; Irene and Jesse Hicks, from Canyon, the Charley Howard's, Don and Kathy Howard and Elaine, the Shirley Smith family and Marion and Suzy Hicks and boys, all from Umbarger.

THE JOHN WIECKS had as guests Tom and Linda Hesse and Rachel, from Austin; Larry and Elizabeth Wieck and family, from Dalhart; Carolyn and Sam Kirkland and family, from Lamesa; Allen and Marilyn Hicks and Chad, from Dalhart and Stanley Wieck, from Texhoma.

DWIGHT BRANDT SPENT the holidays with his parents, the Jack Brandts. On Thanksgiving day, other guests of the Brandts were Henry and Amalia Bracht and Mrs. Emma Brandt, all from Umbarger.

MRS. SYLVESTER BATENHORST is recuperating after under-going surgery in Neblett Memorial Hospital recently. We wish Elsie a speedy recovery.

SEVERAL UMBARGER FAMILIES went elsewhere for the holidays. Louis and Mary Wieck and Jan went to Pryor, Okla. to visit with Albert and Hilda Birkenfeld. Mary said that they were only three miles from the tornado that struck there. They brought some pecans from the Birkenfeld pecan grove home with them.

MRS. GERTRUDE FISCHBACHER spent Thanksgiving day with her daughter and family, Mary and Harry Broman, who live in Hereford.

KENNETH WIECK WENT to Hillsboro, to attend the wedding of a friend, with whom he attended Alamo High.

WE WENT TO Fort Worth on Wednesday, to visit with Andy and Edith Raef and Nancy. Tom came from Clovis on Tuesday and went to Fort Worth with us. Kevin stayed home to run the store for us. Our daughter, Helen came to Fort Worth from San Antonio to visit with us, so we had a real good time.

CHS Choral Students To Sing In All-Region Concert Saturday

Canyon members of the All-Region Choir will be participating in a two-day rehearsal session this week to culminate in a performance by the ensemble at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Amarillo High School Auditorium.

Guest clinician for the workshop, which will be conducted throughout the day on Friday and Saturday, is Dr. George Umberson, chairman of the West Texas State University music department.

The All-Region Choir is comprised of top students in the seven class AAAA and three class AAA school ensembles in the region, according to Tom Jennings, Canyon High School choral director.

The CHS All-Region Choir members include first soprano Debbie Moreland; second sopranos Julie Whittington and Judy Batenhorst; second alto Edna Glovier; first tenors Phil Davis, Ricky Mantooth and Vern DeWees, second tenor Marty Widick, baritones David Lindley and Richard Smyrl, and basses Kelly Forehand and Glen Holcomb.

Programmed for the All-Region Choral Concert are Daniel Pinkham's "Wedding Cantata," Brahms' "O Schone Nacht," Arken Jeski's "Day of Judgement," John Bennett's "Weep O Mine Eyes," Shaw Parker's "Havana Gila," and Mueller's "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God." The choir will be under the direction of Dr. Umberson.

News Brief

Members of the Canyon congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will go to Amarillo this weekend for the semi-annual circuit assembly sponsored by the Watchtower Society. Presiding Overseer Rayford Loudder said all meetings have been cancelled at Kingdom Hall this weekend. Phillip Arnold of the Canyon congregation will participate in a portion of the assembly.

Dr. Green To Lecture For Chicano Program

"The Anglo View of the Chicano" will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Michael Green slated at 5 p.m. Sunday at the West Texas State University Methodist Student Center.

The program is the last of a series of programs focusing on the cultural heritage of the Mexican-American. The series is co-sponsored by the WTSU Chicano Club and the United Campus Ministry.

Dr. Green, assistant professor of history at WTSU, is the departmental scholar on the American Indian.

His talk will focus upon how the body of "generally negative attitudes" toward the Mexican-American developed historically in America.

A discussion session will follow the lecture, which is free to the public.

CHS Sophomores Defeat McLean

The Canyon High School sophomore girls' basketball team downed McLean 50-23 in action Saturday night in the CHS gym.

High scorer for the CHS team was 5-5 forward Danita Orick, who netted 18 points. Close behind her was Brenda Wilhite, who captured 16 points for the team.

Vanessa Cotton scored nine points, Joeline Crow, five points and Kim Howell, two points.

The sophomore girls will play their next game Dec. 7, when they face Happy High School here.

Girl Born To Schultzes

Dr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Schultz of 1703 Creekmere in Canyon became the parents Monday of their first child, Katherine Clara Marie.

The child was born at 8:06 a.m. Monday at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. She weighed 7 pounds ½ ounce at birth and measured 19½ inches in length.

Dr. Schultz is professor of geology at West Texas State University.

Ike & Tina Turner Coming To WTSU

Ike and Tina Turner, nationally-known for their raw, volatile and frenetic brand of soul music, are scheduled to appear Dec. 7 at West Texas State University.

The performance, under auspices of the WTSU Student Activities Council is slated at 8 p.m. in the Fieldhouse.

After 20 years of playing small clubs along the "Chitterling circuit," the husband-and-wife team were first discovered by the British.

The duo's first big hit, "River Deep, Mountain High," made little impression in the United States compared with its reception in England, where it immediately shot to No. 1 on the charts following its release in 1966.

Although husband Ike is the composer, arranger, producer and leader of the revue, it is Tina Turner and her husky-edged voice that are out front in the spotlight when the duo performs.

The female singer's frenzied, sensuous delivery has won the admiration of such other stellar performers as the late Janis Joplin, who tagged Tina as her favorite singer. The vocalist has also won the title of "the female Mick Jagger" among fans of the Rolling Stones' lead singer.

The duo has shown a phenomenal ability to transform someone else's hit tune into their own style and make it into another smash seller. Their arrangement of the Beatles' "Come Together" and the Rolling Stones' "Honky Tonk Woman" both climbed high on national charts.

Ike Turner, a native of Clarksdale, Miss., began making music when he was six years old, when he discovered "an old piano in a church lady's house" and agreed to cut wood in return for the use of the keyboard.

"I didn't really know what a piano was," he said. "All I knew was that when I pushed down on the keys it made a sound I liked."

Turner said his musical career began when he was finally given a piano of his own after bringing home a "report card full of good grades." After teaching himself the chords, Ike began performing in school plays and "impromptu recitals" for friends and relatives.

Upon completion of high school, Turner organized his first band, the "Kings of Rhythm." The ensemble played locally at first, but their reputation eventually grew and they were invited to a recording session in Memphis.

Ike's first big R&B hit was a tune called "Rocket 88," which he said was a big financial score for the record company. But Turner said he only got $40 for writing, producing and recording it.

Soon afterward, Turner went on the road, performing with musicians like B. B. King and others. It was in 1956, that he met Annie Bullock, the future Tina Turner, in a St. Louis nightclub.

A native of Brownsville, Tenn., Annie Mae Bullock grew up in a large family in Knoxville, where she was steeped in the gospel-singing tradition. In the mid-50's the singer moved to St. Louis with one of her sisters.

The couple began working together in 1959, when Tina sat in for a female singer who failed to show up for a recording session of one of Ike's compositions. The tune, "Fool In Love," sold a million copies.

Since then, the duo has performed nationally before sellout crowds and has appeared on numerous television shows, including the late-night rock revues, "Midnight Special" and "In Concert."

Tickets for their WTSU appearance are priced at $4 for WTSU students not living in dorms and $6 for general admission. Dorm students will be admitted without charge. Tickets are now on sale at the Activities Center Information Desk.

WANTED

Applications for bus driver being taken.

Competent drivers are now needed to help fill some of the vacancies among the bus driver ranks of Canyon Ind. School District according to Administrative Assistant Bobby J. Byrd.

How does one qualify to be a bus driver in Canyon? You must have a chauffer's license, pass a medical examination, have a good driving record and meet the hair and dress code of the Canyon schools. Dependability and concern for children are other qualities which the transportation department looks for in hiring drivers.

Who can be a driver? Drivers in Canyon include college students, retired persons, housewives and others. Women and men both are encouraged to apply.

What is the pay? Pay will vary depending on the length of the route. It ranges from $5.60 a day on two routes to $8.40 a day on the three longest routes.

Anyone interested in applying for a position as bus driver or desiring information on how to obtain the necessary qualifications to become a driver should contact Mr. Byrd at the School Superintendent's office. 2tc35 greatest crisis of their lives.

Death. . .

"This is why I charge no fee for my services," she said. She added that she was not "against" some form of socialized medicine or national health insurance.

Unless an individual faces up to his own "gut reactions" toward death, he cannot face a terminally-ill patient.

"Our physicians, who are taught to heal and prolong life, are seldom taught how to confront their dying patients," she said. The attitude of many doctors toward their terminally-ill patients, she said, is often that of discomfort, even disdain.

She spoke of times when doctors and other medical personnel attempted to prevent the kind of candid dialogue about death that she engages in with terminally-ill patients.

"I'd like to see doctors trained in the art of medicine, not just the science. They need to be instilled with the love of humanity, the human touch," she said.

"As it is, the only thing many doctors know about death is how to perform an autopsy," she said.

Sometimes the mark of a good doctor is his ability to know when not to be professional. Dr. Kubler-Ross alluded to experiences in her practice in which she violated the rules of aloof and objective professionality — she broke down and cried with the patient.

Terminally-ill patients attempt to convey their feelings in three basic languages, Dr. Kubler-Ross told the audience.

First, there is the patient who uses "plain English" — "he's the one who has come to grips with his own death and usually doesn't need your help" — in fact he's the one who generally ends up helping those around him adjust to the situation, she said.

Young children sometimes convey knowledge of their impending death via "symbolic nonverbal language," expressed oftentimes in gestures or pictures. She spoke of one child who drew a picture of himself as a wee figure holding a stop sign up before a massive submarine moving threateningly towards him.

"He saw death as representing a catastrophic, destructive force over which he had no control," Dr. Kubler-Ross said.

Still another means through which individuals express their feelings toward dying is through "symbolic verbal language."

Meeting once with a group of children who had lost a brother or a sister, Dr. Kubler-Ross was confronted by one child who said she wanted a crying doll for Christmas so she could "teach me how to cry."

She explained to Dr. Kubler-Ross that whenever she cried, her mother began to cry. She had to stop her mother's crying, and her mother had to stop her from weeping. "So we can never have a good cry together," she told the physician.

"I dismissed the other children and got the one child's mommy into the room and shared with her about the crying doll. The mother finally dropped this mask of not sharing her feelings with the children. She started to cry, and then her daughter started to cry. And then I started to cry. . .I wasn't worried about whether or not it was professional. Besides, it was Saturday morning and nobody saw," Dr. Kubler-Ross told the audience.

Children usually have the easiest time in facing up to death, because of their natural honesty about their emotions, she said.

Of all age-groups she has encountered, Dr. Kubler-Ross reckoned it was adolescents who generally "have the hardest time of it — they are the ones who are just beginning to live," she said.

She advised the audience "not to push a dying person into talking about his death." Many patients would like to discuss their feelings, but they're not ready to talk about it yet, she said.

The dying individual should be the one to first determine when the subject should be discussed. And when he does indicate his desire for such a dialogue, it's important that his listener not attempt to switch the subject to empty pleasantries, she said.

Dr. Kubler-Ross said that anger was a "positive reaction" for the patient, and that individuals should encourage a dying person to vent all his frustrations and furious feelings of "why me?"

She said that she favors sending the terminally-ill patients home to die so that they can spend the last moments with their family and loved ones. She decries the impersonal atmosphere of the intensive care unit as well as the edicts barring children under the age of 14 from the hospital room.

Dr. Kubler-Ross said she is against the "unnatural" prolongation of life in which a patient is "kept hanging on in a vegetative state through all kinds of artificial apparatus instead of being allowed to die naturally."

She told the audience, however, that she was firmly against "mercy killing," which she defined as termination of life before its natural end.

The awesome advances in medical technology have served to prolong life, she said, and yet people today experience more difficulty in coming to grips with death than did their grandparents.

Years ago, death was considered more of a natural event in the lives of families. But today, death has been cloistered behind hospital walls, where it has become a kind of hidden phenomenon. People no longer die in their own beds, she said. Virtually all natural deaths occur within the hospital.

After placing the audience in the shoes of someone confronting a dying patient, Dr. Kubler-Ross switched the situation around and conjured up another situation.

"I have bad news for you," she said. "You have a potentially terminal illness." In light of their previous gut reactions toward encountering a dying individual, she asked how they felt about actually being the victim of terminal illness.

The responses from the audience included "lonely," "unwanted," "pitiful," "unloved" and even "guilty."

Because the dying person reminds us of "our own finiteness," she said, we have these negative gut reactions that are unhelpful and guilt-provoking to the patient.

"This is why it is so important that we reach an understanding about death and come to grips with the inevitability of our own death," she said. "What is so terrible about dying that millions should have such terrible reactions toward it?" she asked.

"Terminally-ill patients don't need a psychiatrist when they are dying," she concluded. "One human being being honest with them at the right time can turn a big nightmare into a beautiful, gratifying experience on both sides."

major factor — the price of wheat on the market.

Brazzil said while in past years some stockers have grazed cattle through May and even June rather than cultivating a wheat crop, the high price of wheat this year could mean little grazing out of cattle and more cultivation of wheat.

"There's a slim possibility many more cattle will be brought in," Brazzil said.

The county has been plagued this fall with unseasonably dry weather. Less than two inches of moisture has fallen in Canyon since late August.

and get back what they can on the safety of the (dam) structure."

Ferguson said his own recommendations center around ideas for ridding the lake of its problems with algae growth and pollution.

He indicated the department may decide to rework in some way the lake bed, perhaps to more concentrate the water and still maintain a smaller but more adequate fishing lake.

"The dam may be able to hold enough water to at least maintain a fish population," he said. "But, these things will all be fully aired in January."

In another significant development on the lake's future, Ferguson said he has been told his appropriation for the current fiscal year will approach the amount allocated last year for the refuge operation.

Although he has not seen his allocation, he said it will be near the same amount and perhaps even increased through the end of the fiscal year, which ends June 30.

A committee to study ways to get water into Buffalo Lake and future uses for the lake was formed last summer when several hundred citizens met in Canyon.

The committee ended its sessions recently to await the word on Ferguson's appropriation. Committee members had hoped to meet with officials from the Interior Department to continue to work with them on the lake future.

Recession. . .

Duman said if the American people can become optimistic with the belief that the economic problems plaguing the country will end in the foreseeable future, a recession might be averted.

"So much of it (the economy) is psychologically motivated," he said, noting that a good or optimistic attitude would lessen the impact of the economy's combined problems.

On the other hand, however, a general feeling of dismay could continue to foster the general downward trend in the economy.

HAPPY NEWS

Happy's "Meet The Artists" Tea Set For Sun.

By MARY NEAL HENRY

THE HAPPY ARTISTS Club will hold their annual "Meet The Artist" Christmas Tea on Sunday, Dec. 2, from two to five o'clock in the school cafeteria. You are invited to attend and view their paintings.

WE HAD A wonderful Thanksgiving. Sheri was home from Amarillo College and Ken home from Clarendon College. Of course, J.T. and Angelique were as thrilled as Tom and I. Mother was here, too. We had turkey and dressing (I'll never live it down) and all the trimmings. . . even fresh pumpkin chiffon pie, Camma Lou's recipe. It was delicious. And we were most thankful. (How do they schedule that football to last all day and all night?)

LOTS OF "KIDS" home and in church Sunday morning — Pam Shipman, Bob and Don Lee, Sandy and Brenda Railsback, Barbara Dowd and Sue Wright.

CHARLES WRENN AND his mother, Mrs. Velma Wrenn were also in the services Sunday morning. Patti had to return to Seminole with a ball player.

PAULINE AND WOODROW Wesley had company most of Thanksgiving week. Luty and George Vaughan from Hawthorne, Calif. were visiting. Luty is Pauline's sister. Lacy and Gertrude Boyd from Wellington were also Thanksgiving visitors. Lacy is a brother of Pauline's. Rube and Thelma Wesley of Abernathy spent part of the weekend.

JESSIE AND J. J. Lane spent Thanksgiving in Claude at the Stephenson's home. Joy and Bob Stephenson of Lubbock were also there.

MODENIA AND GEORGE Rahlfs traveled to Tulsa, Okla., to be with their daughter, Jean Boyles and her family.

EULA AND T.J. Bonds spent Thanksgiving in Clovis, N. M. with Eula's sister.

HAPPY HAD A White Thanksgiving. The White family all took their Thanksgiving dinner to the Happy Jaycee Hall. They even had color T.V. along with cards, dominoes, pool and ping pong. George and Louese White and their Nancy, Gracie and Frank Tirey and their children and grandchildren, Bill and Georgine Tirey and their Jason, Judy and Gene Shipman and their Raphe and Mandi, George and Sara Tirey and their Jim and Laura, and Jeanne and Ronnie Johnson and their Roxie (they thought Jay had the mumps); Alice Penn and children, Kaye and David Penn; Sue and George Penn and their Derrick, Brenda and Shirley, Debbie and Rickey Osburn and their little Rickey; Charlotte and Roman Weaver and their Leslie and Ramona, all ate Thanksgiving dinner and these were joined for supper by Vera and Alti White, Inez and Hollis Shipman and Lizzie Wesley and Debra, and Genora Jackson.

MARY AND BOOTS McBroom had a very large crowd of relatives in for Thanksgiving. In addition to these, they invited five WTSU students, who were unable to be home for the holidays, to spend Thanksgiving in their home. My hat is off to these lovely people.

WILLA JANE AND Jim McManigal and their Christy took in the A&M-Texas football game on Thursday.

INEZ AND HOLLIS Shipman and grandchildren, Mandi and Raphe Shipman, spent the weekend in Altus, Okla. with Nan Earl and Bob Geauthreaux and their Patricia Nan, Tanya and Jerry Doyle.

MARY SUE AND Harold Eakes traveled to Chickasha, Okla. last weekend to visit Harold's mother who is in a rest home there. Harold also had a sister in Chickasha and other relatives in Oklahoma.

LENA BELL CABE spent Thanksgiving at McKinney with Poe and Linda and their Kyle and Meredith.

JOHN FRANK AND Novalene and their Hol drove to McKinney for the football game and returned on Saturday. McKinney beat Mansfield 3 to 0 and play next week for regional.

MRS. BILLY (SANDRA) Penn is in Tennessee with a sister who has new twins.

JUDY AND TUFFY Thompson and their Jo Beth and Roy Dee spent Thanksgiving in Del Rio with the Jim Bob Altizer family. They went hunting while they were there and Judy Thompson killed a deer — her first. Tuffy shot a turkey.

GWYNN AND WELDON Tucek traveled to Verona, Mo. for the holidays. They visited Weldon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tucek; his brother, Robert and his family; a sister, Mrs. Eddie Cox and her family; his aunt, Ella Leseburg and her husband, Gus; and cousins, Leroy and Gladys Bauer. Leroy and Gladys Bauer are former Canyon residents.

JACK DRISKILL, SHARON Nichols, and Mrs. M.C. Fox were among the winners in Tulia for Thanksgiving turkeys.

DEBORAH AND TIM Shaw of Lubbock are the parents of a girl, Kelly Lynn, born November 17th. Kelly Lynn weighed just over seven pounds. Maternal grandparents are Juanita and Corliss Currie of Bennington, Okla. Mrs. Jessie Currie is the great-grandmother.

DR. AND MRS. Robert West are the parents of a new baby girl. She was born Friday afternoon. Congratulations! (That's happy news).

WILLIE AND JOHN Butler attended a dinner party recently in Plainview. The occasion honored those who had served in Mrs. Frances Austin's house-parties.

HAPPY HIGH SCHOOL played Grace Christian of Amarillo on Monday evening. Happy Cowgirls and Happy Cowboys won both games.

THE SIXTH GRADE boys played during the half.

THE JUNIOR HIGH teams traveled to Amherst. The girls lost, but the boys won their game.

HAPPY OES HAD a good crowd of Masons and their wives for the annual Thanksgiving supper last week. Special guests were the program, a Connecticut Yankee with principals.

PANTEX ENGINEER, MR. Murdock and two Amarillo school principals, Bob Clounch of Sunrise Elementary and Mr. Lancaster of Sanborn who call themselves the Cyclo-Ceramics (translated "Crackpots") presented an exciting program of harmony and laughs. Willie Butler introduced the program after Evelyn Shipman, Worthy Matron, welcomed the guests. Willie later introduced the two wives who accompanied the men for the evening. Frank Tirey thanked the OES for the lovely evening. Evelyn Shipman and Sam Williams, Worthy Patron, thanked everyone for coming and invited them back next year.

ALL MEMBERS AS well as officers of Happy's Eastern Star Chapter are invited on Tuesday evening, Dec. 4, at half-past six for a salad supper honoring the Deputy Grand Matron of District Two, Section Three, Mrs. Sally Teague of Plainview. The officers of Happy will furnish the food, but they urge all members to come and help us welcome our deputy. The meeting will begin at half-past seven in the Happy Masonic Hall.

HAPPY COWBELLES' CHRISTMAS party is Saturday evening Dec. 1, at seven o'clock in the Happy Jaycee Hall.

THE BOYD FAMILY had a family reunion in Wellington last weekend. Five were together — quite a feat for this family. These five were Pauline Wesley of Happy, Luty Vaughan of Hawthorne, Calif., Henry Boyd of Truth or Consequences, N.M., and Lacy Boyd and Ora Crane of Wellington.

PAULINE TOOK LUTY and George to see Sis and Aunt Virgie Cook in Canyon on Monday and to see an uncle, Jeff Cook, in Littlefield on Tuesday. Luty and George Vaughan began their trip back toward California on Thursday.

MARY AND EDDIE Womack are vacationing in Acapulco, Mexico.

SUNNYHILL HOME DEMONSTRATION Club was hostess to the Randall County Council on Monday afternoon at the Farm Bureau Building. Sunnyhill members present were Barbara Danner, Gwynn Tucek, Shirley Williams, and myself. We served cookies, punch and coffee and sponsored a white elephant auction.

I DID MY bit for saving fuel on the way home. I drove fifty miles an hour. I passed no one. I didn't even catch anybody. I kept thinking that someone would stop and ask me if I needed help. To some I was even funny looking. I felt as if I should be doing something else at the same time — reading, writing, something. I may have been driving fifty miles an hour, but my system was going much faster.

JUDY AND GENE Shipman have a brand new, bright, shiny, silver mail box.

ROSANEL AND JOHN Payne had all their family home — Barbara and Thomas from Copperas Cove (Thomas is stationed at Ft. Hood); Lizabeth and Gail Bizzell and their Lisa and Deann from Muleshoe (Lizabeth is teaching in Amherst); Jimmy and Becky and their Shaunda from Amarillo, and Larry and Ann, also from Amarillo. Johnny was already home, so that made al he children home for Thanksgiving.

NORA AND DEE Taylor had a very special Thanksgiving.

IT WAS ALSO Nig's birthday. LaNelle and Lonnie Todd were hosts to their family's Thanksgiving feast. Ruth and Pat Maynard were there and Sandra and Don Maynard and their Jeff and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Todd, and, of course, Kyle and Vicki. Glen and Dorinda Maynard are living in Denver, Colo. now and both employed by a gas company. They were recently home for Homecoming.

OUR SYMPATHY TO Clarence and Claude Todd on the death of their brother who lived in Ft. Worth.

SKIP AND LARRY Simons and their Clay and Dwayne shared their turkey with Lenna Parker and Keith Hartman.

FAYE AND FOSTER Parker and their Debbi, Brenda and Cathy traveled to El Paso to spend the holidays with old friends, Alice and Jerry Dietz.

THE WEEK OF Prayer for foreign missions is Dec. 2-9. This marks the time when Southern Baptists focus attention on foreign missions. The theme is "God's Gift Unspeakable." At the Christmas season what more appropriate verse could be chosen for this mission emphasis than "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift." II Corinthians 9:6-15.

HAPPY'S BAPTIST GOAL this year is one thousand dollars. The overall Southern Baptist goal is twenty million dollars. When we began we had fifty missionaries in five countries. Now we have twenty-five hundred missionaries in seventy-seven countries.

BAPTIST WOMEN INVITE all women to meet and pray with them each morning next week at half-past nine o'clock. These meetings will be in homes of some of the homebound people in our community.

ONA HOLLAND'S HOME is the meeting place on Monday and Willie Butler is chairman of the program that day.

MR. AND MRS. S.E. Vaughan will be hosts on Tuesday morning. Mildred Devin is program chairman that morning.

AT SEVEN O'CLOCK on Wednesday evening, there will be an all-Church mission dinner in the Fellowship Hall at the Baptist Church. You are all invited to bring your dish and join us. The men will be in charge of the program and Brother Paul Heil will be the chairman. This program is entitled "God's gift, Opportunities for Service."

EDNA WALKER, WHO lives northwest of Happy, is having Thursday morning's meeting. Anna Mae McManigal is program chairman.

BERTIE CULP FILLED in for Friday morning's meeting. Joan McDonald is program chairman for the morning.

REMEMBER EACH MORNING next week at half-past nine, Be concerned for the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering.

WILLIE AND JOHN Butler and their Bobbyetta and Andy just enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner at home and the rest. That evening Willie and John and Bobbyetta and Jean Ann Rowell dined out and went to see "Brothers O'Toole."

BETTY AND FLOYD Tipps and their Valerie and Tommy also just enjoyed being at home and resting for Thanksgiving.

COWBELLES WILL BE included in the Farm and Home Show on Channel Four on Saturday, Dec. 1, at NOON. I will be on the show with Willie Butler, State Publicity Chairman, and Vivian Woods, our local Happy Cow-Belle president.

YOU ARE INVITED to a film, "Isn't It Good To Know," at the First Baptist Church in Happy on Dec. 9th at six o'clock in the evening.

THE NEXT TIME you're out enjoying the warmth of a sunny day, stop and think. . . some lives are so marred by pain and lack of purpose that the sun never rises...

THE NEXT TIME you're sharing your most intimate thoughts and dreams with a friend, think about those who have no dreams. . . and no one to share them with....

THE NEXT TIME you hear children laughing. . . enjoying the delights of their world, remember what broken, wasted beings other children have become....

THE NEXT TIME you think about what Christ has done for you think about what He could do for the cold, lonely, broken, crying world of people within your world.

JESUS CHRIST STILL brings the miracle of new life into the darkest corners of despair, ISN'T IT GOOD TO KNOW that we. . . you and I. . . can share His transforming love. . . with everyone.

ISN'T IT GOOD TO KNOW can be the beginning of that sharing. Take time. . . to see it with someone who matters to you.

"ISN'T IT GOOD TO KNOW" is a film portraying the beginning of a new day, the beginning of a new life. It will be showing on Sunday evening, Dec. 9, at six o'clock at the First Baptist Church in Happy. You are invited to share it with us.

See ya!

CHS Choral To Tape Televised Xmas Concert

The 65-member Canyon High School Chorale under the direction of Tom Jennings will be taping a Christmas program next week which is scheduled for airing at 5 p.m. Dec. 12 over KGNC-TV, Channel 4.

Among the selections to be taped are "Carol of the Bells," "Carol of the Drum," "Twas the Night Before Christmas," "White Christmas," "Cantabo Domino," "Let Us Sing Unto the Lord" and a medley of traditional carols.

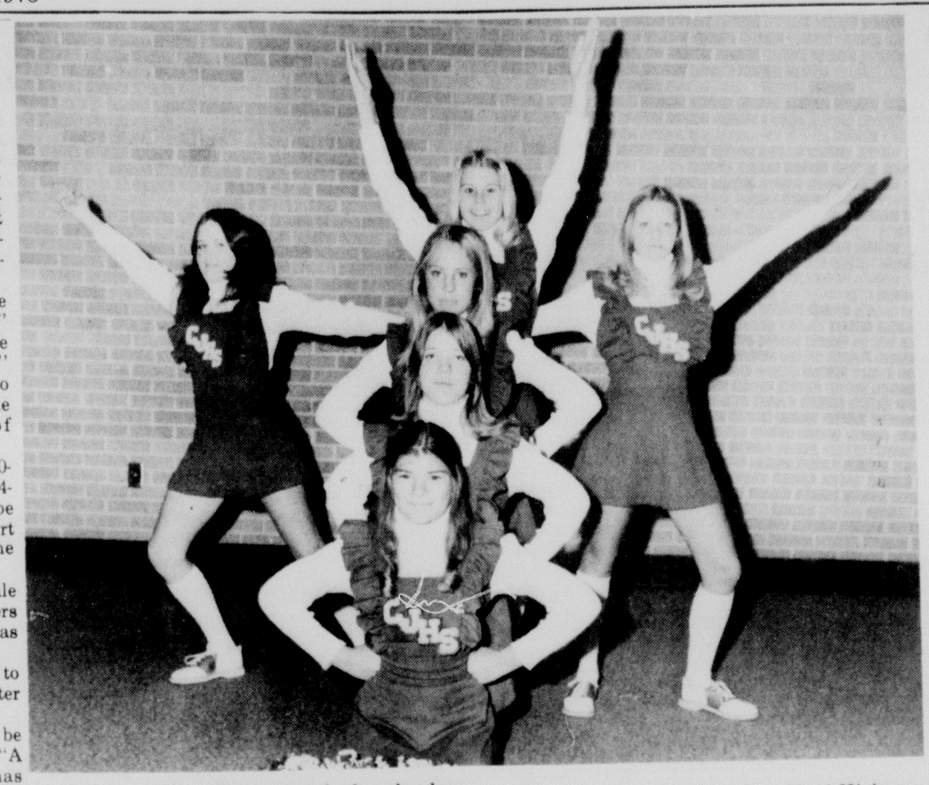
The Chorale, along with the 80-member Mixed Choir and the 24-voice Show Choir, will also be featured in a Christmas Concert slated at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 17 in the CHS auditorium.

The program for the Chorale will include the same numbers performed on tape, as well as several others, Jennings said.

The Show Choir is scheduled to perform "The Twelve Days After Christmas."

The Mixed Choir will be featured in performance of "A Babe Is Born," "Christmas Is . . .," "Still, Still, Still" and "Fum, Fum, Fum" ("Joy, Joy, Joy").

The concert is free to the public.



Canyon Junior High School cheerleaders serving for 1973-74 are front to back, Terry Vaughn, Susan Bonifield, Krista White and Lisa Erwin. Standing left is Kari Hickman and right, Cindy Stallings.

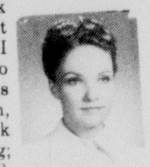
Thoughts Turn To Christmas

SUCH AS IT is Greetings: SINCE TURKEY DAY has come and gone; and, hopefully, the turkey is rating the same distinction (enough already with the turkey sandwiches!), our thoughts have turned to Christmas. The attending festivities and the party and gift planning command most of our thoughts and all of our time.

A THE - DAY - after - Thanksgiving shopping trip to the toy departments proved quite intriguing in more ways than one. The trip was more dedicated to the purpose of, "seeing what they've got, so I'll know what I want," than to actual purchasing.

TAKE A TOY store; throw in some moms and dads and some grandparent types; stir in a few aunts and uncles and some brothers and sisters. What will you have? A couple of hours' worth of interesting banter.

You can sell most anything with a SEEK ad. Call 655-7121.



Such a remark as, "Why is it everything I want costs so much?" is matched with, "I don't think I'm 1. Too big; 2. Too old; 3. Too little; 4. Too young (take your choice) for it, Mom."

THE EVER - URGENT call of, "Look at this, Mom!," always caused more than one maternal head to turn to seek the source. The reply to, "Can I have this?" was countered with, "Well, then can I have that?" What on earth is an "Early Christmas Present?" Lots and lots of youngsters were campaigning for one of these.

A TOY STORE is a musical place, too. Everybody, from the youngest toddler to the oldest grandpop simply could not resist stopping and fingering the keys on the toy piano. Same for the accordian and the guitars. A few fearless souls, undaunted by thoughts of germs, managed to toot a horn or two before getting caught by a meticulously dressed parent. The drums? Mercy! Adolescent ecstacy — Parental torture.

HEARTWARMING SCENES: THE young couple spending a proper amount of time selecting the perfect doll and doll bed for an absent young lady. The mom and the saleslady were handling the doll and speaking of it as though it were a real live baby. While discussing the merits of the baby doll in question, ("She's a chubby one, isn't she."), ol' dad was standing by with a sheepish grin whilst gingerly stroking the lacy edging on the crib blanket.

ONE YOUNG LADY with long blond hair timorously trying to make her monumental decision — between a car and a pool table.

A GRANDFATHER PATIENTLY investigating the play dishes with a pretty young someday-housewife.

A VERRRRY INTERESTED father conversing with his son over the pros and cons of the myriad proffering in football games.

TEENAGE GIRLS GLEEFULLY hugging stuffed animals.

CRAFTSY (THAT'S NOT crafty) aunties eyeing the do-it-yourself kits. Including, but not limited to, candles, cheese, rugs, pillows, pictures, and on and on and on.

TEENAGE BOYS GIVING equal time to the teenage girls and the racing cars and tracks.

WHAT DO WE come home with when the store finally closes? Sore feet, tired legs, flat billfolds and . . . and, another busy time under the tree. Happy faces — that's what we get.

WE GET AN overheard this week, too. One with which we all can identify. The scene: Two pretty, young misses discussing a new pair of jeans. The wearer thereof was heard to remark, "Oh, I like 'em alright. But, they're a little tight in the back." (For the record, these were preteens.)

WELL, IT FINALLY surfaced again, and yours truly is still trying to locate the owner of one spoon. A "Rivera" stainless steel serving spoon. The handle is prettily decorated with daisies. The last time this spoon saw its owner was at the Teacher's Appreciation Luncheon. You know, the luncheon last May. The one we had the day after school was out.

REMEMBER THE SAYING, "What you see is what you get?" Well, what "You've read" is what you get when you don't call.

THANKS FOR THE use of the hall. And, sincerely: Thank you for hanging in there with me for another round.

Chamber Music Programmed For Concert Today At WTSU

A chamber music concert will be presented by students of West Texas State University today at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theatre on the WTSU campus in Canyon.

George Eason, WTSU associate professor of music is coordinator of the concert.

The students will perform numbers for string instruments, woodwinds, horns and piano.

Performing Dvorak's Trio, op. 21 in B flat Adagio molte e mesto, is a piano trio, composed of James Caddell, Lubbock senior playing violin; James Wolden, Amarillo junior playing violincello; and Ethel Gooden, Amarillo senior playing piano.

A woodwind quintet will play Revecy Venir du Printans, by Claude le Juene and arranged by Alan Hawkins, WTSU instructor of music, and Quintet, Allegro vivace and Adagio by Robert Linn. Jim Edwards, Canyon senior, will play flute; Paul Worosello, Westminster, Colo. junior, will play clarinet; Richard Fairbanks, Midland sophomore, will play oboe; David Aikin, Abilene freshman, will play bassoon and Hugh Lathem, League City freshman, will play horn.

Performing Mozart's Quartet, K. 478 in g minor, Allegro, is a piano quartet composed of Jane Johnson, Amarillo sophomore, playing violin; Debby Kinney, Amarillo senior, playing viola; Linda Wise, Grandislan, Neb., freshman, playing violincello; and Lily Koesjan, Amarillo senior playing piano.

Quartet No. 2 in D, Nocturne, by Borodin will be performed by Greg Shaffer, El Paso junior, and James Caddell, Lubbock senior, playing violin; Don Harrington, El Paso freshman, playing viola; and James Wolden, Amarillo junior, playing violincello in a string quartet.

Flute Recital Scheduled

Flutist Nancy Wright, graduate student at West Texas State University, will be featured in a recital slated at 3 p.m. Sunday in the WT Fine Arts Auditorium.

Accompanying Miss Wright will be pianist Mariellen Garner, wife of Dr. Gary Garner, director of bands at WTSU.

Scheduled for performance are Poulenc's "Sonata for Flute and Piano," Boccherini's "Concerto in D Major," Arnold's "Fantasy for Flute," Bach's "Sonata IV" and Gaubert's "Sonatine for Flute and Piano."

The recital is being presented in partial fulfillment of graduation requirements for the Master of Arts in Music degree, which Miss Wright is seeking.

Xi Kappa Zeta Chapter Of BSP Discusses Plans

Discussions concerning the needy family for the Thanksgiving Basket and plans for the rituals to be held at the next meeting were the order of business at the recent meeting of the Xi Kappa Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

Sally Fulley, hostess for the meeting, gave a program titled "An Experience."

Refreshments were served to the following members, Velta Hord, Bettie Hunter, Jean Irwin, Lucille Robinson, Virginia Rossiter, and Kay Thomas.

New Band Director To Conduct Concert

When the Canyon Junior High School Band presents its Christmas concert on Dec. 11, there'll be a new director at the podium, according to J. W. King, director of bands for the Canyon public schools.

Richard Bales, a graduate of West Texas State University from Dimmitt, will assume direction of the CJHS bands beginning Monday, according to King.

Bales graduated from Tulia High School and received Bachelor of Music Education and Master of Arts degrees from WTSU. He has previously taught music in the Tulia and Dimmitt public schools.

Mr. King said that parents will have the opportunity to meet the new director following the debut concert.

The program for the concert has not been finalized as yet, but King said the repertoire will include traditional Christmas carols and popular selections.

Performance time is 7:30 p.m. in the Canyon Junior High School auditorium.

News Brief

Mrs. Harriett Brandon, president, presided over the third monthly meeting of the Canyon Jr. Forum Tuesday.

The minutes were read by Mrs. Linda Ray, recording secretary.

"Everyone Needs a Zucchini" was the title of the speech given by Mrs. Ruth Holladay, guest speaker.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mesdames R.E. Grimes, Robert West, Ken Maynard, and Virginia Cotten.

Members of the Canyon Jr. Forum are doing volunteer work in the libraries and nurse's station of the Canyon School system.

Mrs. Linda Pinkerton, professional cake decorator, puts the finishing touches on the ruffle and lattice work decorations on a star shaped cookie for Christmas. This was one of many ideas she gave Canyon Dames members at their cookie swap last Wednesday.

Dames Swap Cookies And Recipes Get Tips On Xmas Cookies Trims

The Canyon Dames got together for a cookie swap recently at the Episcopal Student Center. Each member was instructed to bring their favorite Christmas cookie and a veritable cookie smorgasbord was the result.

Mrs. Linda Pinkerton, professional cake decorator, gave a demonstration on how to decorate cookies for Christmas. She started with a simple sugar cookie recipe, cut the cookies into shapes, and brought the different shapes to show the club members how to put the finishing touches on them.

A star shaped cookie took on a new look with a lattice work design in white and a red ruffle border. For a Christmas tree, Mrs. Pinkerton iced the cookie in green and added red ornaments. Her favorite cookie decoration is for a round cookie with a hole in the middle. A little green and red and the artist's touch turned up a holly wreath complete with berries and a bow.

"I got started in cake decorating about five years ago and I love it. At first, I just wanted to learn how so I could do special things for my children," Mrs. Pinkerton said. Now, Mrs. Pinkerton's specialty is wedding cakes with a personal touch for the brides. The personal touch comes from her copying the lace design from the bride's gown and transferring it to the cake. "I try to make each cake personal for that bride."

Other tips Mrs. Pinkerton gave the members present were that red is the hardest color to make, butter cream is the best icing and that "Anyone can cake decorate if they want to go to the bother or make the mess."

The way that Mrs. Pinkerton makes her colors is with professional paste colors. As far as food coloring was concerned, "It takes so much food coloring and then it doesn't taste good. I want my cakes to taste as good as they look."

One trick Mrs. Pinkerton uses to get a good tasting red icing that children like is with cherry or strawberry Kool-Aid. "This is great for kids and if you like a tart taste."

Mrs. Pinkerton plans to start a cake decorating class sometime after the first of the year.

After Mrs. Pinkerton finished her demonstration, club members proceeded to sample the cookies that had been brought.

After the sampling, recipes were swapped and some of them were given to be shared with the public.

Kay Madewell supplies this recipe for Truffles.

Truffles

1 6 oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
Pinch of salt
½ tsp. vanilla
3 tbs. ground nuts

Heat chocolate in double boiler. Remove from heat and add condensed milk, salt, vanilla and nuts. Stir until smooth. Pour into pan lined with waxed paper. Chill until firm. Turn out of pan, remove paper, and cut into pieces. Yields 12 pieces.

Rosettes, made with a special iron available at the Village Shoppe were contributed by Bonnie Kraai.

Rosettes

1 cup flour
1 egg
½ cup milk
½ cup water
1 tsp. sugar
½ tsp salt
2 lbs. shortening

Follow instructions that come with iron. Rosettes are a very light pastry type cookie covered with sugar.

Becky Ingel gave this recipe for the old favorite, Sand Tarts.

Sand Tarts

1 cup margarine
¼ cup powdered sugar
Add:
2 tsp. vanilla
1 tbs. water
2 cups flour (add food coloring optional)

Bake at 300 degrees for 20 minutes. Remove from oven and roll in powdered sugar while still warm.

Sherlene Hayes contributed a recipe for Scandinavian Filled Cookies.

Scandinavian Filled Cookies

Cream together:
1 cup butter
½ cup brown sugar firmly packed
Beat in 2 egg yolks
Add 2 cups sifted flour
Shape dough into 1 inch balls
Dip in 2 egg whites and roll in 1 cup of finely chopped nuts. Place on greased sheet. Make a dent in the center of each cookie. Bake at 325 degrees for 5 minutes. Press centers down again and continue baking 15 minutes. Cool slightly and fill centers with jelly or marmalade. Makes 5-6 dozen.

Magic Cookie Bars supplied by Kathy Gilbert were well received at the cookie swap.

Magic Cookie Bars

½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, melted
½ cup graham cracker crumbs
1 cup chopped nut meats
1 cup (6 ozs.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 1/3 cup (3½ oz. can) flaked coconut
1 can Eagle Brand milk

Pour melted butter into the bottom of a 13x9x2 inch pan. Sprinkle crumbs evenly over melted margarine. Sprinkle nuts evenly over crumbs. Scatter chocolate pieces over nuts. Sprinkle coconut evenly over chocolate pieces. Pour sweetened condensed milk evenly over coconut. Bake in a 350 degree oven 25 minutes or until lightly browned on top. Cool in pan 15 minutes. Cut into bars. Makes 2 dozen 1½ inch and 3 inch bars.

Readers Theatre Scheduled Sunday

A readers theatre production directed by senior speech and drama major Sheila O'Keefe of Amarillo is slated for performance at 5 p.m. Sunday in the Intimate Theatre of the West Texas State University Fine Arts Building.

Miss O'Keefe has been active in theatre work at WTSU and the Amarillo Little Theatre.

Her production is under the supervision of Dr. Zell SoRelle, professor of speech, and William A. Moore, drama department head.

FFA Banquet Slated

Canyon High School will host the Amarillo District Future Farmers of America at a banquet slated at 7 p.m. today at the Canyon Junior High School cafeteria.

About 350 representatives from 15 different schools in the area are expected to attend the event, a spokesman said.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Dr. Leon Hill, president of the Southwest Speaker's Forum. The title of Dr. Hill's speech will be "Prospects Unlimited."

Also highlighting the event will be the presentation district FFA award winners and Leadership Team winners.

News To Offer Car Pool Ads

In an effort to make car pooling easier for Canyon residents who live here and work in Amarillo and for students who live in Amarillo and commute to Canyon for classes at WTSU, the Canyon News is offering a free bulletin-board section in its classified section.

News Editor Carroll Wilson said beginning with Sunday's issue of the paper the News will devote a special heading and column in the classified section for residents and students to use to aid them in finding rides to and from Amarillo.

Wilson said the service will be free, as an effort to aid residents caught in the energy squeeze or who desire to save gasoline.

Noting that car pooling is being urged for Amarillo commuters to WTSU, Wilson said he hopes students particularly will take advantage of the special section to seek out other students who could form car pools for the 15-mile drive to and from Canyon.

"In view of the fact that about 2500 students at WTSU commute from Amarillo or from some other Panhandle area town, we feel that such a service would be a real benefit for those who may face gasoline problems," he said. "The newspaper is really the only effective bulletin board for this kind of thing and we are glad we can offer the service."

Bulletins for the special section will be run in each edition of the News for one month or until the person who ran the bulletin cancels it.

Bulletins should be not more than 10 words with telephone number and entire address counting as one word.

The special section will be labelled Car Pools in the News classified section.

Persons desiring to place bulletins for car pools in the News should call 655-7121 before 10 a.m. on Wednesday for the Thursday paper and before 10 a.m. on Saturday for the Sunday paper.

Buffs To Face Central State In Season Opener Saturday

West Texas State University's "new look" basketball team will be facing one of the more experienced teams to play in Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in their regular season opener.

The Buffaloes of first year coach Ron Ekker rolled past Brazil, 74-55, earlier this month, but that doesn't count on the regular season schedule.

Central State University from Edmond, Okla., returns 11 lettermen back from last year's team which won 20 games and lost only nine. No lettermen were lost and 10 of those 11 started at least once last season for coach Mark Winters.

Winters will start three three-year lettermen Saturday night. The three senior veterans are 6-7 Eligha Bell, 6-9 Tony Bolar and 6-0 Johnnie Roseburr. Other starters will probably be 6-5 sophomore Tony Bolar and 5-11 senior John Kelsey. Bolar lettered last year as a freshman and Kelsey has two letters.

Bell paced the team in scoring with a 10.8-point per game average and in rebounding with an 11.0 average. Roseburr scored 8.9 points per game and Denwalt 9.2. Two other players who were among the team's top five scorers last year are not in the starting lineup this season.

Michael Johnson, 6-3 guard, scored 9.4 points per game last year and 6-5 forward Joe Sheets tallied 9.2 points per game. Both Johnson and Sheets will be ready for duty Saturday night as key reserves.

Central State broke even in its opening games last weekend and was to meet Midwestern University in Wichita Falls. The Bronchos defeated Missouri Southern, 68-67, and lost to powerful Henderson College of Arkansas, 63-50.

During Central State's 20-9 season last year the Bronchos limited six opponents to under 50 points. After trailing at halftime in a game played at Lubbock, Texas Tech rallied for an 81-74 victory.

Central averaged 64.3 points per game last fall and limited its opponents to 58.3 points, a point-spread of six.

Coach Ekker, who built winning basketball teams at Winona, Minn., State College and Hillsdale, Mich., College, will use a strong, aggressive defense.

The 1973-74 Buffaloes will be short on experience with only three lettermen returning from last year's 9-17 team. The lettermen are 6-2 Jay Benn, 6-8 Reginald Ramey and 6-7 Hector Rodriguez.

Ramey, who scored 16.5 points per game, and Rodriguez, who had a 7.7 scoring average, started for the 1972-73 Buff team. Those two, along with three junior college transfers started against Brazil.

Starters, other than Ramey and Rodriguez, against Brazil were 6-7 Dana Albright, 6-4 Joe Cosey and 6-2 Howard Taylor.

Ramey led the Buffaloes against Brazil with 23 points and 16 rebounds. Cosey contributed 20 points against the South Americans and Taylor added 16.

Season tickets may still be purchased for the year at $30 for the 15-game home slate. Single game tickets are on sale at $2.50. The single game and season tickets are on sale daily at the WTSU ticket office on campus and at Sears in Amarillo.

On game days the tickets are on sale at those two locations, plus the Amarillo Civic Center.

Santa Now Accepting Mail

Santa Claus announced last week his North Pole office is open and prepared to accept recommendations or suggestions for Christmas gifts from children in the Canyon area.

Claus said he has named The Canyon News official letter collection headquarters for Randall County.

And, he urged local youngsters to prepare their gift requests in the not-too-distant future to avoid mail tie-ups anticipated due to the fuel crisis.

Claus noted that in spite of a Presidential request that speeds be kept to 50 miles per hour, Rudolph will set a fast pace on Christmas Eve to deliver the millions of gifts worldwide. The fuel shortage has not affected his supply of reindeer feed, he said, due to record harvests in the steppes.

Troy Martin, publisher of The News, told Claus he will accept the responsibility of collecting and then forwarding mail from local youngsters.

In fact, he said, some letters have already arrived and been forwarded to Claus.

Martin said letters should be mailed to the following address for fast service to the Arctic regions:

Santa Claus
c/o The Canyon News
Box 779
Canyon, Texas 79015

The News publisher said that again this year the newspaper will print all letters to Santa in editions prior to Christmas.

Canyon Pastor Gets Re-Election

Rev. Jimmy D. Rogers, pastor of the Southside Baptist Church, 2009 10th Ave. Canyon, was re-elected to the seven-member Board of Trustees of the Department of Youth of the Baptist Missionary Association of Texas during their annual association meeting last week at the civic center in Tyler.

The board is composed of pastors and laymen from the 524 churches that are members of the B.M.A. of Texas.

Rev. Rogers has served as clerk of the trustee board since the beginning of the department of youth in 1970. He is the youngest member of this board and all other boards of the B.M.A. of Texas.

The Department of Youth assists local churches in implementation of youth programs which involve the young person in service projects and assist the young person in spiritual growth, a spokesman said. The programs include a Christmas Youth Conference, Dec. 27-29, a Vanguard program which is a summer missions program that trains and involves high school and college age young people in vacation Bible schools, day camps and other youth involvement ministries.

Rituals Held For BSP Chap

Exemplar rituals were held last week for the Xi Kappa Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi with Virginia Rossiter assisted by Mary Ann Berry and Billie Dee Flesher officiating.

The degree was given to Bettie Hunter and Marie Manley.

Upcoming events for the month of December and the needy Thanksgiving family were the order of business discussed.

Jean Irwin, hostess served her guests finger sandwiches, dips and a dessert that carried out the yellow and white color theme from a table centered by a bouquet of yellow roses.

Other members in attendance were Velta Hord, Betty Sue Patterson, Sally Pulley, Lucille Robinson, Sammie Stroud, and Kay Thomas.

WT Carol By Candlelight

The Christmas Carol of Lights will not be turned on this season at West Texas State University.

The decision was made Monday by administration and the student committee responsible for the lighting project.

"We are trying to go along with suggestions made by President Nixon in his Sunday night energy message," says Cathy Cleveland, Borger senior.

"We're going to try to keep the spirit of the Carol of Lights without burning as much electricity. Instead of turning on the 3,000 lights on all of the buildings, the students are going to participate in a simpler ceremony. That will mean a candlelight ceremony in front of the new library at about 8 p.m. on Dec. 2," Miss Cleveland said.

"Each student will bring their own candle to light," Miss Cleveland said. "Otherwise, the ceremony will be the same."

The Phi-Mu Alpha brass choir and glee club will perform at the ceremony. The public is invited to attend.

Making Xmas Gifts Is Economical Way

By CAROL YOUNG

Christmas is only 22 shopping days away. That may seem like a long time, but when one is planning to make gifts for family and friends, (some folks have quite a few family and friends) it is hardly enough time.

The paragons of doom concerning the energy crisis make the selection of gifts, whether buying or making, sound a little difficult, because it will take a lot of gas to shop around town.

Taking this into consideration and the money shortages many are feeling in addition to all the other shortages, making Christmas gifts is the most economical way to go through the season and remain financially sound. One way to make the cost look like less and keep from taking such a big bite would be to buy the materials for several gifts, make them and by the time they are finished, it may be pay day again. This way, gifts can be finished ahead of time and the cost is gradually taken out, not in one big hunk after a last minute shopping spree.

A gift that someone took the time and effort to make himself has an added gift in itself, the gift of caring for one another.

For those who sew, crochet, knit, embroider, and for the beginners in these fields, the selection and ideas are bountiful and can be made even more original through a little use of imagination on the part of the maker.

Material scraps that have been piling up and cluttering up the sewing room are perfect for making patchwork pillows, animals, bags, shoe bags, closet bags, and pallets for children, teenagers, or adults. A wide variety of patterns and material, if there aren't enough scraps, are available at local merchants.

One pattern that caught this reporter's eye was for a nap or play pad or pallet for small children. They come in three shapes, a fish, doll, or hand, and have a pattern for a matching pillow. The finished size of the fish is approximately 60 inches by 36 inches. What better way to entice a youngster to settle down for a nap or just to watch TV while mom calms her nerves? This would make nap time fun time and would be economical to boot.

Patterns for stuffed animals are available and these can also be made from scraps. Pillows in patchwork designs made from scraps to add a popular decorating touch to a teenagers room come in pattern sizes from small throw pillows, to pillows that are used to sit on the floor. Floor pillows are used extensively in decorating now.

There are even patterns available for "furniture." One is for a bean-bag type of armchair. The seat is a round cushion, flat on top and bottom, with a large round snake that coils around to form the back and arms. A real conversation piece for a teenager or adult!

Quilts are popular as bedspreads or for use as blankets. Material scraps are notorious for finding their way into use as a quilt. For those who haven't mastered this fine old craft, there are patterns available for decorator quilts that really don't have to be "quilted." A double bed size calls for some 15 and ⅛ yards of material. That perplexed this reporter, but it was so beautiful that it couldn't be resisted. The pattern calls for 195 patches, and a total of 15⅛ yards of material is listed. Someone is always having a sale on material that offers 3, 4 or 5 yards for $1, $2 or the like. If this is the case, this quilt wouldn't be expensive to make. When one considers making it out of material that costs $1 a yard or up, that's a different story.

In the yarn department, knitters and those who crochet might have some left overs that could be worked into small gift items. There is a pattern for a man's or woman's neck tie that could be used for this.

The patterns for sweaters, vests, little girls dresses, and women's dresses are at the local merchants too. One top that was viewed, was on the order of the halter, and there wasn't much to it. This is the going style, and wouldn't take much yarn. Vests that are basically two pieces, front and back, attached at the shoulder, are popular styles and don't require much yarn.

Afghans and baby afghans are a nice gift, but these would take a great deal of material and time, however, the accomplished woman could make short order of these.

This year, a new idea has come to the fore in the crochet field. Crocheted rugs. Several patterns include geometric, flowered, and checked patterns in fairly simple stitches. These are used for small area rugs, and the yarn is rug yarn, or regular yarn could be used. One that was attractive was made of granny squares or circles stitched together giving a lacy look. Others were more solid with fringe.

There are even patterns for crocheted dolls and stuffed animals. Crocheted pillows and covers for cubes too. The ideas and patterns are unbelievable.

Another pattern for a doll that is sewn and stuffed is a winsome country girl type of "rag doll." Scraps could be used to make the doll's dress, and any other doll clothes, there are patterns for the smallest to the largest dolls. Kits, with all materials needed, are for sale for $2, to make a rag doll. A beginner would have no trouble with this.

In case anyone wants to do over the bathroom, or knows someone with a new house, there are patterns for bathroom accessories. These include rugs, fringe and all, tank covers, tissue box covers, wastebasket covers anything imaginable. Shower curtains and matching window curtains might be a good idea and there are patterns available.

Christmas is coming, there's no getting around that, but there's no reason for last minute rushing and hasty gift selections with the patterns and materials that can be found right here in Canyon at a local merchant. Take a walk through some of the stores to get the Christmas spirit. Some of them already have decorations up and for sale. If one waits until after Thanksgiving to get enthused, the selection might be of less variety and then there will only be about thirty days left. That's just a month.

These ideas are just for gifts, wait until the ideas for decorations come up, then the mind will start reeling, and thinking will be difficult. Do everyone around the place a favor, and start early, then when Christmas gets here, pats on the back will be in order. Won't that be nice?

Conservation Head In Canyon

Bill Casteel, formerly of Cooper in Delta County, has assumed duties as district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Randall County.

Casteel, a native of Fannin County, assumed duties Monday succeeding John O'Connor, who is district conservationist in the Gulf region.

Casteel has been with the Delta County SCS for five years. Prior to that time he worked with the SCS in Denton County.

A graduate of Sam Houston State University at Huntsville, Casteel joined the SCS in 1953 at Bryan.

He and his wife, Clemmie, have one son, Brian, 6. Mrs. Casteel and Brian have not yet moved to Canyon.

Casteel is a member of the Methodist church, the Lions Club and was a member of the Delta County Chamber of Commerce. He is a Mason and he and his wife are members of the Order of Eastern Star.

New President Named By Exes

Mrs. Thelma Evans of Tulia was elected president of the West Texas Ex-Students, Inc. at the board's regular monthly meeting Tuesday on the West Texas State University campus.

Mrs. Evans, a 1947 graduate of West Texas, is married to B. Raymond Evans, member of the university's Board of Regents.

She has previously served as vice president under president Wayne Rankin, '50, of Plainview.

Joe Sneed, '49, Amarillo businessman, will serve as vice president of the alumni association when the new representatives take office Jan. 1, 1974.

Tuesday's meeting was the first with an expanded membership which includes four university representatives.

Membership had previously been limited to WTSU graduates, but the Ex-Students voted at their Homecoming meeting this fall to extend board membership to WTSU president Lloyd Watkins, Dean of Fine Arts John Green, Director of Development Keith Winter and professor Charles Wright.

Bill Hunter, '56, Moore County district attorney, was named first vice president, and Wix Price, '51, Borger banker, was named second vice president.

Amarillo attorney Don Patterson, '52, was elected treasurer, and Dr. Lindsey Taylor, '59, Amarillo dentist, was selected secretary.

WTSU Prof's Book Is Published By Tech

"Mineral Resources of Hudspeth County, Texas," a study by West Texas State University geology professor Dr. Frank W. Daugherty, has been published by the Texas Tech University.

The study was a part of a 1972 research proposal to "determine the economic, legal, and sociological profiles of the Central Rio Grande Valley and their relationships to water resources," wrote Frank B. Conselman, director of ICASALS, in the introduction to Daugherty's publication.

"Dr. Daugherty, who has had extensive professional and economic experience with minerals of the type known to occur in Hudspeth County, kindly undertook to make this survey on behalf of ICASALS, and we consider his work of sufficient quality and significance to justify separate publication," continued Conselman.

Hudspeth County is located in far west Texas, bounded by New Mexico to the north, Mexico to the south and Culberson County to the east.

It has an area of 4533 square miles and had a 1970 population of 2392.

"In any overall analysis of world-wide and national mineral availability, it becomes apparent that sooner or later every prospective source of mineral resources must be explored and, if possible, exploited, to meet the increasing needs of the technology of modern society.

"Hudspeth County, with an area equal to the land area of the state of Connecticut, holds promise as one of the few remaining portions of the United States that has not been extensively prospected as its potential appears to warrant," writes Conselman.

Resources found in Hudspeth County include asbestos, talc, fluorite, and coarse industrial materials such as limestone, gypsum, and gravel.

Conselman notes that metals such as lead, zinc, copper, uranium, gold, silver, and ferroalloys have been worked or investigated.

Dr. Daugherty came to West Texas State in 1963 as a professor of geology. He was appointed Coordinator of Earth Science Research for Killgore Research Center in 1966.

He is a graduate of Sul Ross State College, and received the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Texas.

Canyon Study Club Appoints Committee To Study Purchase

A committee was appointed at the recent meeting of the Canyon Study Club to research the feasibility of the club purchasing new play ground equipment for Rex Reeves Elementary School.

Also on the agenda were discussions concerning the club's Christmas project which is helping a family.

Guest speaker was Dr. Tom Cannon who spoke on behavior modification. According to Dr. Cannon, in using behavior modification one doesn't brainwash other people — one brainwashes himself. He told them to set goals and rewards, and that punishment tells a person not to do something while reward tells them what to do.

Two new club members, Mrs. Bryan Poff and Mrs. Lloyd Kurtz were introduced to the members.

Roll call was answered by members relating something that made them happy, and reports were given on the Halloween Carnival and OPI Game Night.

Sandra McRoberts was hostess assisted by Sue Hooper and Carolyn Hurst as co-hostesses.

County Hires Architect

Randall County commissioners hired an Amarillo architect Monday to design what they apparently envision as a 10,000 square foot, $300,000 to $400,000 courthouse annex in South Amarillo.

The firm of Vaughan-McMorries and Associates was hired by commissioners at a fee of 7 per cent of the total price. The firm was chosen following two hours of meetings with four architectural firms.

Commissioners, during the discussions, revealed only scattered hints on what they envision in the new building.

But, they cut out a major consideration in construction of the annex — location of facilities for the use of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Commissioners agreed with Commissioner Paul Lindsey that facilities for the department should not be constructed at Randall County expense.

"We shouldn't be in the leasing business," Lindsey said in reference to the current lease arrangement the county has with the department in the South Amarillo annex.

Even with the loss of consideration of a facility for the department, commissioners indicated they are still eyeing a building with more than double the space now available in the current annex.

Lindsey has said there are about 5,000 square feet in the current annex.

Commissioners and various architects spoke Monday in terms of about 10,000 square feet.

They also talked at length about a basement for the building.

Other firms appearing before commissioners were Mitchell & Wossum & Associates, Wilson-Doche and M. Howard Ensign.

In other business, commissioners after a hassle of some 50 minutes, approved a contract with a Dallas bond attorney and with financial advisor Bob Davis of Columbian Securities.

Commissioner John Fulgenzi took issue with the contract providing the bond attorney with fees for various services ranging from $200 each and up.

Davis told the court that a bond attorney was an absolute prerequisite to issue of certificates of obligation.

Fulgenzi contended that the attorney's fees were primarily charged for items which required little or no work.

The contract was approved, as was a contract with Davis to act as financial advisor.

Tacit in the signing of the contracts was the understanding the county will issue certificates of obligation to finance construction of the new annex.

Davis told commissioners he had erred during an earlier presentation and said that a new state law provides for voters to be able to call a referendum election on the certificates of obligation issuance.

Commissioners also approved a hike from $25 to $50 per fire for the Umbarger Fire Department. The department fights fires in the western portions of the county.

Although no vote was taken commissioners discussed and apparently reached informal agreement that in view of the energy crisis and the county guidelines recently given county employees by Judge Woody Pond employees should not be allowed to use small electric heaters in county offices.

Fulgenzi and Lindsey noted that the use of small electric heaters defeats the purpose of a cutback in heating to 68 degrees for the county courthouse.

President Nixon To Be Eyed Tonight

The state of the Presidency will be the topic of discussion for members and guests of the Canyon Political Action Group at 6:15 p.m. today at the Only Place restaurant.

Dr. Walter L. Shelly, professor of government at West Texas State University, will join Dr. John K. Kahler, professor of history, in the discussion.

Both professors previously appeared before the group in a discussion of the Presidency in light of the Watergate scandal.

The discussion is open to the public.

Services Pending For J. Watson

Funeral services are pending at LaGrone Funeral Chapel for Jerome Watson, 94, a resident of 2506 Seventh Ave. who died early Wednesday at the Southwest Convalescent Center in Amarillo.

Born in 1879 in Healdton, Indian Territory, Watson moved to Canyon from Floydada 15 years ago. He was a retired farmer.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Dovie Bailey, who died in 1954.

Pallbearers will be Dr. W. Mitchell Jones, Dr. Marshall Watson Jones, David Jones, Sam Jones, James D. Williams, Mike Wallace and Steve Wallace.

Survivors include a son, Jake B. of Floydada; two daughters, Mrs. J.A. Edwards and Mrs. Mitchell Jones, both of Canyon; two sisters, Mrs. Ima Slocum of Duncan, Okla. and Mrs. Bessie Culberson of Healdton, Okla.; five grandchildren, and fifteen great-grandchildren.

Recital Set For Student

Nancy Wright, West Texas State University graduate student of Canyon, will present a recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Branding Iron Theatre in the Fine Arts Building on the WTSU campus.

Mrs. Wright will perform on the flute and will be accompanied by Marlellen Garner on the piano.

A teacher of music at Austin Junior High in Amarillo, Mrs. Wright received a Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Houston in 1971. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John E. Green. Dr. Green is the dean of the School of Fine Arts at WTSU.

The recital is presented in partial fulfillment of the graduation requirements for the Master of Arts degree in music.

Special Recital Set Wednesday

West Texas State University members of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia presented a special recital Wednesday in the Fine Arts Theatre on the WTSU campus.

The 11 selections on the program were written by American composers.

Special soloists performed numbers by Corina, Gershwin, Latham, Swan and Martino to a piano accompaniment.

The Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Glee Club presented six numbers under the direction of Dr. George Umberson, head of the WTSU music department.

A music fraternity for men, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, encourages and actively promotes the highest standards of creativity, performance, education and research in music in America.

Officers for Fall 1973 are Steve Melton of Levelland, president; Rodney Miller of Midland, vice president; Gerald MacDonald of El Paso, secretary and Dan Steele of Canyon, treasurer.

News Brief

The American Association of University Women will have a covered dish luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the Episcopal Student Center.

After the luncheon, the members will be entertained by Mrs. J.P. Cornette at her gallery to view art of the southwest.

Hostesses for the luncheon will be Loris Clifford, Louise Jacobs, Ermyl Cooper, and Anna Wright.

WT ROTC Joins With Borger JC

West Texas State University's efforts to pursue stepped-up cooperation with area community colleges received a boost with the announcement that the Department of Military Science will provide on-campus ROTC for Frank Phillips College at Borger.

"The agreement heralds what could be a new era of cooperation between the two schools," Lt. Col. John O. Childs, WTSU professor of military science, said. "The program will be of benefit to both Frank Phillips and WTSU."

Childs said his staff will travel to the Borger community college to teach courses at the freshman and sophomore levels. A curriculum identical to that taught at WTSU will be provided. Courses to be offered will be transferable to all senior ROTC units.

Courses to be offered include marksmanship and drill, map reading, and military history. The courses are open to both men and women students.

Late last summer, WTSU began a similar cooperative program with Amarillo College.

Venue Change Denied For Man

A motion for change of venue was denied Tuesday afternoon by District Judge Don Dean in the conspiracy case of Reginald Bassett of Amarillo after representatives of three Amarillo television stations and two local law enforcement chiefs said they believe Bassett can get a fair trial in the county.

Television film footage and written reports of aired news coverage were entered into evidence at the pre-trial hearing Tuesday in 181st District Court by Bassett's attorney John Broadfoot.

Bassett is charged with conspiracy to get marijuana in connection with an alleged conspiracy uncovered by law officers in Potter and Randall counties in mid-August. He was arrested Aug. 13 after indictments were returned against he and four others by the grand jury.

William Charles Zortman of KVII-TV, Ron Slover of KFDA-TV and Charles Weigert of KGNC-TV appeared as witnesses for Broadfoot, but each declared they believe Bassett can receive fair trial in Randall County.

Zortman, Slover and Weigert said Bassett's name was only briefly mentioned in their broadcasts concerning the alleged conspiracy and that the arrests were given no more than normal television coverage.

Each television announcer read his particular station's broadcast concerning the arrests and indictments.

Canyon Chief of Police Al Stewart also appeared, but as a prosecution witness. Stewart said he believes Bassett can receive a fair trial in the county.

Randall County Sheriff Cliff Longest told the judge the same thing.

Bassett is charged with being involved in a conspiracy for what Dist. Atty. George Dowlen has termed one of the largest marijuana purchases in Amarillo.

The state alleges five men conspired to ship a large quantity of the illegal drug to Amarillo from the Mexican border for resale. The plan went awry, however and the marijuana was not received.

Give them roots.

A new couple moving in? Know a special WT student?

A nice way to feel at home is to know about home.

The Canyon News will introduce them to Canyon — the neighbors, the best places to shop, where to bank, what to see. We'll inform them — and keep on informing them. And can you think of a better gift than that?

Sister's Life Not The Cloistered Existence Of Yesterday

By ANN MELIN

Some of the classmates of Juanita Cruz were a little surprised when they saw the West Texas State University sophomore don a leotard for modern dance classes.

Juanita Cruz

The same surprise followed the 31-year-old social work student to her bowling classes.

But the real double-takes came when Juanita Cruz emerged from the dressing room of the WT swimming pool clad in a bathing suit.

Oh, the swimsuit was nothing to get excited about, really. One of those regulation varieties. But what was surprising was the person who was wearing it.

Juanita Cruz is a Franciscan nun.

The students who seem to be the most astonished to see a nun bowling, dancing and swimming are usually the ones who were brought up within the Catholic Church, Sister Juanita says. They're the ones who think of a nun in more traditional concepts, she adds.

Since she entered the Franciscan order in 1960, Sister Juanita says that many changes have occurred in the lifestyle of a Roman Catholic nun.

Only in recent years have nuns been able to attend college at secular institutions, she says.

The young nun says her classes at WTSU have been an "inspiration" to her, allowing her to meet faculty members and students, and making her "more aware of responsibilities on the national, state and county levels."

Being a nun today offers more of a challenge than it did in the old days, she says.

Nowadays, sisters are given more freedom in making decisions for themselves, whereas in the past, they were provided with instructions covering all aspects of their life's work.

One of the most noticeable changes that has been wrought in recent years has been in the nun's attire.

No longer are nuns required to wear the voluminous black habits and long veils with the white bands encasing the face.

Now, nuns appear in public in basic brown and white dresses or suits at lengths varying from middle-of-the-knee to a little below the knee.

While once a nun was not permitted to show her hair, she may now do so, wearing a short black veil that sits at the crown of the head. As of two years ago, nuns may now remove their veils under certain circumstances, such as when they're engaging in sports activities.

Sister Juanita's own wardrobe is purchased at Goodwill Industries in Amarillo, she says.

The Amarillo nun is proud of her way of life, and likes to "show it off" to people who indicate an interest in convent life.

Those who seem to register an interest in such matters, however, are more often than not professors or male students, Sister Juanita says.

Two of the nun's favorite profs — Dr. Michael Green of the WT history department and Dr. Walter Shelly of the political science department — have been honored at luncheons at the convent, hosted by Juanita and her fellow sisters.

The nun smiles when she thinks of the impression of convent life that Dr. Green presented to the sisters at the convent.

"He told us he'd always thought that people who lived in religious institutions were basically unhappy. But he said he was astounded to come to our convent and find it so full of laughter and joy.

"And that's the way it is. We are like one big happy family."

Regardless of the innovations that seem to make a nun's life more comfortable, the religious profession still requires extreme dedication, Sister Juanita says.

Juanita was initiated into the life of a nun in 1958, when she came from her hometown of LaMesa to an opportunity workshop in Amarillo for girls thinking of entering the convent.

Five years of her life were spent in preparation for sisterhood. First, she assumed her postulancy for over six months. During that time she was required to rise at 4:45 a.m. and was allowed little contact with the world outside the convent. Classes were conducted by correspondence. Most of her days were spent in prayer and household chores. Sisters were given a 30-minute recreation period in the evening and lights were out by 9 a.m.

After the postulancy, Sister Juanita assumed the role of novitiate for one canonical year. During this time, she was to have only a minimum of outside contacts. The focus of her life during this time was on spiritual development, and for that reason, she took no academic courses for the entire period.

After serving as a novitiate, the nun made her temporary profession to the sisterhood. After three years, the profession was renewed for an additional three years. At the end of that time, Juanita made her final life profession to the convent.

In 1967, a welcome innovation was made in convent life, according to Sister Juanita. Nuns were allowed to wake up later in the morning than previously. Reveille was now at 5:30 a.m.

Where once Sister Juanita's order was exclusively a teaching order, members of the convent may now go out into the community and work. Sister Juanita is currently employed as a nurse's aid at the Golden Spread Convalescent Home.

When she was accepted for the job at the nursing home, Sister Juanita said her boss was surprised when she neglected to ask how much she was going to be paid for her services. When this was brought to her attention, the nun replied that salary wasn't of too much importance to her, but now that he'd mentioned it, how much was she going to be making?

She then requested that he make her paychecks out to the convent.

Along with the weekly paychecks of all of the actively working nuns, Sister Juanita's pay is pooled into a general convent fund. The fund provides for education of the young nuns; hospitalization for the aged and infirm nuns and for all living expenses for the 37 sisters in the convent.

In addition, Sister Juanita receives a $10 a month allowance for small, personal items.

"It's a lot like a family budget," Sister Juanita says.

Lots of things have changed in convent life over the years. But one thing hasn't, Sister Juanita says.

"Our way of life is still religious-motivated all the way. We all try to live in the Franciscan spirit of joy, peace and freedom. And when you have found happiness in Christ, you know that nothing can ever happen to take that happiness away from you."

Four Women Are Recipients Of Stipends

Four West Texas State University women athletes were presented scholarships Tuesday by the Canyon Chamber of Commerce.

Betty Williams, Andrews senior, Jane Eyer, Hobbs, N.M. senior, Bennie Weeks, Sundown sophomore, and Alma Ramsey, El Paso sophomore, were presented scholarships from the Keith Jackson Scholarship Fund established by the chamber from money received from Jackson last winter.

Miss Williams and Miss Eyer received $100 scholarships and Miss Weeks and Miss Ramsey received $150 scholarships.

David West, vice president of the chamber, presented the scholarships for the coming semester.

Miss Williams participates in volleyball and track, Miss Eyer participates in volleyball, track, Miss Weeks participates in volleyball and track and basketball, and Miss Ramsey participates in volleyball, basketball, track and rifle.

West said the $550 in scholarships depletes the Jackson Scholarship Fund, established by the sportscaster last winter when he was keynote speaker at the chamber of commerce annual banquet here.

Jackson donated one-half his speakers fee to the fund for scholarships.

Mary Hill is track and softball coach at WTSU, Allene Stoval coaches basketball and rifle and Suzanne Blair coaches volleyball and golf.

Heritage Club Hears True Talk On Endangered Species

"If the eagles can't make it, can we?" asked Dan True, KGNC weatherman and Heritage Woman's Club guest speaker, giving his philosophy concerning the eagle as an endangered species. True presented his program last week at the club meeting as part of a conservation oriented theme for the evening.

He is one of few in the United States possessing a hospital permit to care for injured eagles and is in the process of writing a book on endangered species. His recounting of several interesting experiences that occured during his years of work with various endangered species in addition to other information he used gave the members present an insight into the plight of these species. He considers them to be an "indicator" of man's status on earth.

In appreciation, True was presented a charcoal sketch of an owl by Ann Carlisle.

Club Conservation Chairman, Adrienne Pennington, coordinated and introduced the evening's program titled "Conservation Know-How."

Special guests were Mrs. Jearenane Cartwright and Lavada Urtman, and Canyon Girl Scout Troop 122. The scouts presented a display depicting the before and after of a forest fire and entertained the club members with a song, "This Land Is Your Land."

Joy Davis gave a demonstration on dough sculpture and liver lid art and Mrs. Pennington presented the Girl Scouts with room plaques made of cork, scraps of material and ribbon made by club members during the August workshop.

Harriett Brandon announced plans for the upcoming Federated Club Game Night to be held Saturday evening in the Activities Center Ballroom.

Claudia Stuart, Home Life Chairman for the club and Health Educator for Planned Parenthood, presented a program on Planned Parenthood's plans and accomplishments for the Panhandle.

In Canyon, Planned Parenthood has set up a Patient Advisory Board and their first project was a venereal disease program for area high schools. The first program was given Nov. 15 and another is planned for 7:30 Dec. 11 at the Episcopal Student Center.

Another project of the advisory board is to inform interested members of the community about the services offered by Planned Parenthood.

Mrs. Stuart reported that a new service in the Amarillo clinic provides for the testing for Sickle-cell-anemia and is available to anyone within the 25 counties of the Panhandle.

Club members were told by Mrs. Stuart that the way they could help would be to contact Pam Wanamaker, head of the Canyon Planned Parenthood office and volunteer their services.

"Recipes Tried and True," the club's new cook book was passed out and will be sold for $1.50. It contains the favorite recipes of club members and area ladies.

Hostesses for the evening were Claudine Lehman, Trudy Phillips, and Adrienne Pennington.

Baby Shower For Mrs. Lynn Taylor

Mrs. Lynn Taylor, Amarillo, former WTSU student was honored with a baby shower Monday evening at the Alpha Tau Omega Lodge.

Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. David Denny and Mrs. Jay Miller, Canyon.

Mrs. Taylor was "showered" with a number of gifts that included home and car bottle warmers, a baby scale, crib sheet, spoon and fork and several blankets.

Guests being served cake, punch, nuts and mints from a lace covered table were Mrs. Randy Cornelius, Borger, Mrs. Larry Winters, Amarillo and Mrs. Ernie Sessums, Mrs. Tom Lemons and Mrs. Butch Young, Canyon.

Xmas Concert Slated

A Christmas concert featuring the Collegiate Singers, University Chorale and Schola Madrigalis of West Texas State University will be presented Monday in the Branding Iron Theatre in the Fine Arts Building on the WTSU campus.

Schola Madrigalis is under the direction of Douglas Browne, student assistant in the WTSU music department. The Collegiate Singers and University Chorale is conducted by Dr. Hugh Sanders, associate professor of music.

Federated Clubs' Game Night Saturday To Benefit Canyon Opportunity Plan

Games of every type and description will be the order of activities starting at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Activities Center Ballroom for the annual Canyon Federated Club Game Night.

Tickets are $1 and will entitle the ticket holder to refreshments and game materials for the evening. Groups may be formed before coming to Game Night or people can make up a group when they arrive.

Proceeds from Game Night will go to the Canyon Division of Opportunity Plan Inc. Last December, the Game Night netted $400 to the fund and promises to add more to the account Saturday.

Canyon organizations and individuals have contributed a total of $8,309.31 to their community division. Cash now on hand is $1,823.14. Notes receivable on the five students are $6,486.17.

Forming the executive committee of the Canyon Division of OPI are Judge Woody Pond, chairman; Foster Parker, vice-chairman; Mrs. Korkye Martin, secretary; Mrs. Don Max Vars, treasurer; and Clay Cooper.

Nine civic clubs in the community also have representatives on the committe.. They are the Canyon Lions, Noon Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary, and the federated groups, totaling some 200 members, Woman's Book Club, Sue Hite Club, University Study Club, Canyon Study Club, and Heritage Woman's Club.

Anyone may apply for educational assistance by contacting a member of the committee, or Milton Morris, executive vice president of the OPI, who assists the group in presenting and reviewing the applications. The purpose of the Canyon Division is the same as that of the entire OPI composite; to assist persons of any age, race and personal situation with post-secondary training.

The four recipients now in school using OPI's Canyon money are Miss Connie Ormsby, Mike LaGrone, Mrs. Curtice Hawthorne, and Jimmie Don Childers.

Connie Ormsby, CHS graduate of 1971 and elementary education junior at WTSU, wants to put herself through school. She has done so for two years, with part-time and summer jobs and living at home. However, last summer, she realized that she was missing out on many aspects of college life.

Another OPI student encouraged her to look into the possibilities of assistance which would enable her to move into a dorm and "get involved" in campus life.

The president of the WTSU Student Association this year is Mike LaGrone, OPI pre-med student also majoring in biology.

After graduation from CHS in 1969, Mike attended WTSU and the University of Texas. He returned to WT as a junior and requested financial aid from the Canyon Division. LaGrone has a 3 point grade average and is a member of Alpha Chi, Beta Beta Beta, and Phi Delta Theta.

Mrs. Curtice (Hazel) Hawthorne, will complete work for a master's degree in sociology next Spring, and gives thanks to the Canyon Division for providing the monetary help she needed.

Mrs. Hawthorne had almost completed her undergraduate work last year when her husband's death left her with little means for supporting her two minor children, or for continuing her education. She turned to OPI, to whom she had previously sent other students.

An honor student, Jimmie Don Childers has full credit toward two years in electrical engineering. He was faced with dropping out of school last summer, and consulted Judge Woody Pond for Canyon assistance.

Jimmie received an associate in applied science degree and a certificate of electronics technology from Amarillo College after graduating from CHS in 1969. While at AC, he was named the top electrical engineering student and the "most promising" student in the field of engineering. His grade point average for 110 hours was 3.3 on a 4 point system.

The federated clubs of Canyon extend an invitation to the public to attend the Game Night. Tickets will be available at the door and all game materials will be provided.

Services Slated Today For Robert J. Carter

Funeral services are scheduled at 2 p.m. today at LaGrone Chapel for Robert Jackson Carter, 72, who died at 9:45 a.m. Monday at Neblett Hospital.

Carter had resided in Canyon for 44 years, moving here from Waco in 1929. He was a retired rancher and a veteran of World War I.

Officiating at the services will be the Rev. Darold Baldwin, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Canyon. Assisting will be the Rev. Derrel Lewis, pastor of Cavalry Baptist Church. Burial will be in Dreamland Cemetery.

Pallbearers include John Hardaway, Tommy Hunter, Paul Lindsey, Al Smithers, J.D. Mills and Dennis Burrus. Honorary pallbearers are Bill Patke, C.G. Ponds, J.A. Edwards, Wayne Martin, Tom Hollenstein and Don Blankenship.

Survivors include wife Lucy Mae Carter; son Horace (Nig) of Canyon; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Smith of Olton and Mrs. Dorothy Inman of Midland; a brother, Lewis, of Houston; sister, Mrs. Mamie Rutherford of Waco, and 10 grandchildren.

Funeral Services Held For Susan I. Clark

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the First Baptist Church for Susan Irene Clark, 82, a resident of 1300 Seventh Ave. who died at 12:25 a.m. at Neblett Hospital.

Mrs. Clark resided in Canyon since 1932, when she moved here from Plainview.

Born Aug. 25, 1891 in Dalton, Georgia, Mrs. Clark was a member of the missionary society of the First Baptist Church, as well as the King's Daughters, the oldest Sunday School choir at the church.

Officiating at the services was the Rev. Strauss Atkinson, former pastor of the First Baptist Church now serving as missionary for the Caprock district. Assisting was the Rev. Darold Baldwin, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Pallbearers were Mrs. Clark's grandsons.

Survivors include her husband, D.P. Clark of the home; five daughters, Mrs. Hosea Spratt of Grand Prairie, Tex., Mrs. Lee Wortham of Amarillo, Mrs. Ray Hawkins and Mrs. Gene Morrison both of Canyon; one sister, Mrs. W.P. Thomas of Forney, Tex.; 19 grandchildren and 36 great-grandchildren.

Eagles Downed By Tascosa

The Canyon Eagles, after walloping Claude on Monday night, bowed to a 22-point defeat Tuesday night to the Tascosa Rebels in Rebel territory.

"We had everything to gain by playing well," Coach B.B. Kendrick said Wednesday morning, "but we just didn't play well."

A bogged down full-court press and a lagging defense worked to the detriment of the Eagles.

The Rebels came off the winners 85-63 over the hapless Eagles.

"We got behind early and I don't think some of our boys were ready to play," he said. "We couldn't keep them from scoring."

The Eagles, down 22-14 at the end of the first quarter, rallied during the second and took over the lead 32-30 with two minutes remaining in the first half.

But, in the last two minutes of the initial half, the Rebels regained the lead and added 14 points to their score while holding Canyon to only two more points.

The half ended with the Eagles down 46-32.

By the end of the third stanza, the Rebel lead had expanded to a 71-47 margin and the wide margin remained through the game.

Andy Cooper was high-point man for the Eagles with 19 points, followed by Wayne Pitt with 18 and Lynn Wright with 18.

In action Monday night, the Eagles downed Claude 94-49 in a Claude game.

Wright hit 41 for the Eagles in that outing, followed by Pitt with 14, Cooper and Dennis Collier with 10 each.

"Everybody played and everybody scored," Kendrick said.

In action last week, Palo Duro whapped the Eagles 70-63.

The Eagles travel to Brownfield for a tournament this weekend and will play Denver City at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

Kendrick had some good news this week when he learned that Bob Counseller, injured during football season, will be ready for action on the hardwood next weekend. Counseller, standout tackle for the Eagles, is also a starter on the basketball team.
